

Sunday Morning, October 31, 1869.

The New Role of Radicalism in South Carolina.

We have before alluded to the effort of the exponents of South Carolina radicalism to create political capital by seeking to array the poor, so-called, against the rich, so-called. We stated at the time that most of us were unfortunately so poor that this would hardly do. The movement has assumed a somewhat new form. The persistent effort now making is to create an antagonism between the employees and the employers. The laborers are taught that they are poorly paid. The doctrine is promulgated that the capital of the State is dealing harshly with the labor. And appeals are made to the laborers in all departments to agitate, to move, to strike for higher wages. And the effort is industriously made to induce the laboring-classes to unite with the black-republican organization. All this is done under the pretence of a glowing zeal for the laborers of the country. The fact of the matter is, the movement is neither more nor less than a transparent game of political trickery. It is to drum up white recruits for the radical party—if they can get them. It is to make political capital for a party that must have some new agitation—some new plausible toy with which to please their dupes. It will not succeed. In common with all right-minded persons in the State, we desire to see all classes of our people prosperous. We desire to see the State stand upon the basis of a renewed prosperity. But we never expect to find this accomplished by arraying labor against capital, or by sowing the seeds of bitterness and distrust between the two classes of our people.

"To Labor is to Pray." This saying, true at all times, comes to us with especial force at this time. In the beginning, this condition was impressed upon man. To fulfill his calling on earth, to meet his duties and responsibilities, man must labor—must work with brain or with muscle, or with both. We need not say more upon the general principle. The propositions above stated are so obvious as to be everywhere accepted and appreciated. Here at the South, in these times, where so many have been impoverished by the war, the duty of labor is more than imperative. With us "to labor is to pray." By labor and its fruits we can alone secure the means to do our duty to our families, our country, and God. The highest considerations of what we owe to ourselves and our country point to us the road of duty. Upon the youth, especially, of the South, should the duty of work be impressed. And we may well add, that the kind of work is a matter of importance to us. We notice too much of a disposition to turn away from the labor of the farm and the work-shop to that of the counters and the liberal professions. If we could have fewer clerks, and lawyers, and physicians, and more farmers and mechanics, it would be a benefit to the South. We want to diminish the army of mere consumers, and to reinforce the army of producers. The great sources of wealth are to be found in production and exchange—these directed and controlled by intelligence. Of intelligence we have a fair supply; of exchangers we have enough; but of producers we need more. Hence we have a word to say in behalf of our supreme need. That need is of producers in the field of agriculture and manufactures. This is the age of muscle as well as of brains. We say, then, honor to muscle. We need it.

SYNOD OF SOUTH CAROLINA.—From the Chester Reporter we gather the following about the recent session of the Synod in that place:

The Synod of South Carolina was convened in the Presbyterian Church, on the evening of the 20th inst. Rev. D. E. Frierson was elected Moderator. Drs. Howe and Plumer gave encouraging accounts of the Theological Seminary at Columbia. It now numbers thirty students, with prospects of success. The proposed removal of Oglethorpe University from Milledgeville to Atlanta, excited some discussion, but was finally referred to the Synod of Georgia for action. Prof. J. M. Anderson, of Davidson College, made a flattering report of the prospects of that institution—having at present over 100 students. Dr. Howe announced that his history of the Presbyterian Church, of South Carolina, was now ready for publication, but that $600 was necessary to have it stereotyped. Col. J. H. Taylor, of Charleston, and J. R. Aiken, of Winnsboro, each guaranteed $200, and the remaining $200 was soon made sure. The Synod adjourned Saturday evening, to meet at Anderson C. H., on Wednesday before the fourth Sunday in October next.

The old Dutch Church, in New York, was not destroyed by fire, as telegraphically reported a few days ago; it was injured to the extent of about $1,000. Two large buildings in Fulton street, near the church, were burnt, however; loss $200,000—partially insured.

The Matter of Immigration.

We have not unfrequently referred to this subject as one of great importance to the South. We recur to it now to repeat the proposition, that immigration is certainly one of the needs of the South, and we desire to add, that it is incumbent upon us at least to remove all the barriers that may impede the healthy flow of a desirable immigration. We say healthy, because we desire to be understood as favoring only the introduction of good elements of population. Non-immigration is to be preferred to undesirable immigration. And here let us observe, that the kind of immigration which we need is not likely to come from any forced system, whether that forced system may be adopted in Europe or in Asia. The white emigrants who come to us voluntarily, to improve their condition—this is the class likely to be a valuable accession. Hence, whilst advocating a judicious accession to our numbers in the South, we cannot but think there is much of truth in the caution given in the following extract from the Richmond Dispatch:

"We concur heartily in a paragraph published by us, a few days since, from the Baltimore Statesman, deprecating the rapid crowding of our territory with foreign immigrants, forced in by extraordinary agencies. Most of these agencies are not engendered by public spirit—not prompted by any public necessity. In the main, they are merely intended to benefit individual adventurers and fill the treasuries of steamboat and railroad companies. We trust it will be a long time before this country feels the curse of excessive population. The nation, in justice, ought to go on in the natural way to grow and increase. Let people come under the desire to better their condition in the ordinary way. Those who would thus come would be valuable citizens. But what sort of people do the steamboat and railroad sharks seize up out of the great sea of European pauperism? We are given to deploring the fact that we do not, here at the South, get a larger share of the importation. But our grief is misplaced. We should rather rejoice that we have nothing to do with the great bulk of them.

"Is it a great obligation, imposed by supernatural authority, that this country must be filled up in a few years? Are we required to see, during our generation, that there shall be no new fields left for exploration and development by posterity? We hope not. Rather let us hope that new and fertile fields will be left for our posterity for ages yet to come. Rather a thousand-fold that that should be the case than that our land should be prematurely crammed with incompatible and incongruous masses of population, filled not only with the vices and corruptions of our own country, but with all the worst theories and depravities of European origin, or the yet worse peculiarities, moral and religious, of the other parts of the globe.

"There is a great mistake in this idea of rushing in the currents of population. In part, it is a mania, and in part a swindle. The honest people are enthusiasts, the dishonest are rogues; they open a Pandora's box of evils upon the nation, and swindle both parties, immigrant and employer, with whom they have dealings.

"We do not oppose a healthy immigration of good people who are able to come. That sort of immigration would protect the nation and promote its prosperity, and that is the kind all should desire."

RAILROAD EXTENSION.—We copy the following article from the Unionville Times, prefacing it with the remark that persons desirous of attending will be passed over the Spartanburg and Union Railroad free of charge:

The following notice has been handed to us for publication, and we give place to it with much pleasure. It is a movement in the right direction. It looks to an inauguration at home of an important enterprise. The people here, the people over whose lands the road will pass, have no right to look abroad for aid until they show a disposition to help it with their means. Like the Frenchman, who expressed his sympathy by saying "I am sorry $5," let some one step forward, and say, "I am interested $1,000," and another, "I am interested $500," and enough money will be subscribed at home to start the road. Once fairly started, the centres of wealth and interested corporations will have it completed.

We hope there will be a full attendance at the meeting, and that the cities of Charleston and Columbia and the South Carolina Railroad Company will have representatives present. Union and Spartanburg will be there; Newberry and Fairfield, and Polk, Rutherford, Henderson and Buncombe Counties, in North Carolina, should be there, too. Work is meant, and the ball is about to be set in motion.

IMPORTANT RAILROAD MEETING.—A meeting of the friends of a railroad extension from Spartanburg, S. C., to Asheville, N. C., will be held in the Court House at Spartanburg, on the evening of Tuesday, November 16, at 7 p. m., for the purpose of devising a scheme for the construction of this important railroad. All friends of the enterprise are invited to attend.

Dan. Sickles is now an amusing paradox—he is abroad and at home at the same time. Witness the following cable despatch:

"The Madrid papers have commenced the publication of his previous scandalous career, and every day are holding him up to scorn and ridicule."

Abroad, in Madrid, at home in the estimation of the Spanish people.

The tournament at Unionville on the 20th instant was a success. More than thirty knights had enrolled themselves. Many fair ladies were present to cheer and encourage their favorites. The spectators reached the number of 1,500—some said 2,000. It was a crowd any way. The tilting lasted nearly three hours. The riding was generally good. Every County bordering on Union was represented. The successful knights were Messrs. Sims Thomas, of Union; Waters, of York; Rogers, of Union, and Robinson, of Chester. They crowned, in the order of their names, Misses Hobson, Wallace, Pagan and Rogers.

Reward for Incendiaries.

WHEREAS, information has been received at this Department, that the store-house of D. G. Robertson, of Sumter County, was wilfully and maliciously set on fire, and its contents consumed, on the night of the 21st of October, 1869; and whereas, there is reason to believe that this heinous act was perpetrated by an organized band of incendiaries, who contemplate further outrages of a similar character.

Now, therefore, in order that the offenders may be brought to justice, and the peace and good order of the community maintained and preserved, I do hereby offer a reward of FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS for their apprehension, or each or either of them, upon their delivery in any jail of this State, with proof to convict. In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at Columbia, this thirtieth day of October, A. D. 1869, and in the ninety-fourth year of the Independence of the United States of America.

The Virginia State Fair, which commences Tuesday, November 2, in Richmond, is the first in that State since the war. The new grounds comprise sixty acres, and are nearly covered with the new buildings. The entries already exceeded those of any fair before the war, and those from the Northern States are five times as great. President Grant and his Cabinet, of course, will be invited to be present.

A singular strike took place in the French city of Alais. All the kitchen girls in that place suddenly refused to work any more, unless the following three points were granted to them: Increased wages, less labor, and the privilege of receiving their "cousins" in the kitchen. Only the last point was acceded to by their mistresses, and as the girls attached more importance to it than the other two, they went back to their kitchens.

CRUMBS.—We present our readers with a "supplement," this morning, containing a goodly amount of reading matter, besides a number of advertisements—the careful perusal of which may prove beneficial.

An immense amount of valuable real estate is to be disposed of at auction tomorrow. The attention of capitalists is invited.

Thos. Steers, Esq., one of the contractors for the completion of the Blue Ridge Railroad, is in Columbia. He is quartered at the Nickerson; but he can also be seen at Maj. Alexander's machine shop.

Our country friends are informed that all the sausages, eggs, etc., which they can bring forward, can be disposed of at fair prices to the various hotels during Fair week.

Mr. Wright is now running an omnibus between the several railroads and his hotel—the Nickerson House. Passengers will be conveyed to and fro, free of charge.

Governor Scott has appointed George L. Holmes Notary Public for Charleston.

A copy of "Dixie," with the music, is particularly desired. A fair price will be paid, or other music exchanged for it.

A tournament is being gotten up by the youngsters, to come off during Fair week. As "the old cocks crow, the young ones learn."

Mr. Richard Allen, who purchased the well known "Bryce corner," has completed two handsome two-story buildings—the first floors to be used as stores and the second as dwellings. One of the stores aforesaid he has taken possession of himself, and having obtained a full stock of groceries, invites the attention of purchasers.

I HAVE A TERRIBLE COUGH.—You need not have it long; go to your druggist and get a bottle of DR. TUTT'S CELEBRATED EXPECTORANT, it will soon cure you. It is dangerous to neglect coughs. This valuable preparation may be found in every village and hamlet in the South and West. O306

A wonderful cure reported from Pennsylvania with HEINITSH'S QUEEN'S DELIGHT. A girl fifteen years of age, pale and sickly, emaciated, no appetite, losing flesh, with sore eyes, sore mouth, and a general wasting away—all owing to poverty of blood. After using four bottles of the Queen's Delight, her appetite returned, digestion improved, increase in growth and flesh, sores removed, skin bright and clear, and every indication of an improved condition of her whole system. This is one of the many cases we hear of the wonderful results of Heinitsh's Queen's Delight. Everywhere, North and South, wherever introduced, it is spoken of in the highest terms. O19.
